

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system for separating and aligning small parts including a separating device arranged on an output side of a storage container. The separating device is adjoined by an aligning station connected with a transfer device. The aligning station precisely positions each small part to be transferred and the transfer device transfers each small part to a processing unit.